CPUC NAMES NEW COMMUNICATIONS DIVISION DIRECTOR

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19, 2013 - The California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) today announced that Ryan Dulin has been named Communications Division Director, effective April 1, 2013. The CPUC's Communications Division assists the CPUC in developing and implementing policies to promote universal access to broadband services, protecting consumers, and addressing regulatory changes required by state and federal legislation.

Mr. Dulin currently serves as Deputy Director for California 9-1-1 Emergency Communications Division at the California Technology Agency. He began his career as an Intelligence Security Specialist, based in Washington D.C., with the United States Navy. He then served in senior roles in Information Technology for the California Highway Patrol, California Public Employees' Retirement System, and Financial Information System for California before joining the California Technology Agency.

"On behalf of my fellow Commissioners and the staff of the CPUC, I welcome Ryan to his new role," said CPUC President Michael R. Peevey. "Ryan brings great knowledge of the communications and IT industry to the CPUC, but more importantly, he brings experience in communications safety, which will help us as we increase our regulatory focus on safety and risk management."

Said Mr. Dulin, "I am very happy to join the CPUC and look forward to working on the many important issues the CPUC is charged with overseeing, including ensuring safe, reliable, and universal access to necessary services."

Mr. Dulin holds a Bachelor's Degree in Government from California State University, Sacramento.
